Army Spc. James M. Kiehl, age 22, of Comfort, TX; assigned to 507th Maintenance Company, Fort Bliss, TX; killed March 23, 2003 in an ambush near Nasiriyah, Iraq while serving during Operation Iraqi Freedom. James Kiehl always told his wife to "just think the best." Jill Kiehl, 20, said he was a natural optimist. They were an odd couple. She: short, serious and a natural pessimist. He: tall, "goofy" and a sunny outlook. They met in the military and were married barely more than a year. Their first child is due this month. She's staying with her parents in Des Moines. Kiehl's parents in Comfort, TX, had taken heart from a phone call from a friend of their son, who told them Kiehl had been baptized in Qatar before heading to the battlefield. A computer repair technician, Kiehl was a member of his high school's basketball team and marching band. Jill Kiehl, meanwhile, was clinging to a white teddy bear he gave her before he left. Kiehl bought a stuffed bear for his unborn son, too — one with a small digital recorder so he could hear his daddy's voice.

Korthaus was fording the canal with another group of Marines at 10:30 p.m. local time March 24 to set up a fire support position for a water purification unit on the other side of the waterway. It is unclear how he fell into the water. Korthaus, a member of the Naval and Marine Corps Reserve Center in Peoria, IL, "wanted to be a Marine since he was 10 years old," said his father, a Marine who served in Vietnam. The 29-year-old called home a week before he left for Kuwait in February and was eager to help rid Iraq of Saddam Hussein. "He was ready. He was over-ready in fact," Steve Korthaus said. "He would have been mad if he didn't get to go." Korthaus joined the Marines after he graduated from high school in 1992 and served for four years, his father said. He later thought about becoming a plumber but missed the military and joined the Reserves. Korthaus was engaged and was planning to get married upon his return.
