KARP, Maria Luz Karp

(Abstracted from <https://www.shannonfuneralhomes.com/notices/Maria-MartinezKarp>)

Maria Luz Martinez Karp, age 92, passed away on February 14, 2015 surrounded by family. Luz was born on March 21, 1922 in Tupiza, Bolivia where she was raised by her grandmother, Felicidad Murillo. She became an elementary teacher in the Aramayo tin mines in Bolivia, where she taught children of all ages in a single class room. It was while teaching in Telamayu that she met a young American metallurgical engineer who she fell in love with and married less than a year later. Luz and Philip Karp and their infant and toddler girls left Bolivia in 1951 to begin their life together in the United States. In Mount Vernon, NY, Luz cared for her young family, became familiar with American culture and proficient in the English language. Later she would proudly become an American Citizen. In 1954 the family moved to Ann Arbor MI where they raised their family for the next 20 years. Luz and Phil also lived in Reading PA and Indianapolis IN before retiring to Las Cruces NM. In 2004 they moved to Bradenton Florida to be closer to family. Luz enjoyed life. She had many interests and hobbies that gave her great pleasure: sewing, crocheting, flower gardening, bridge, painting, jewelry making, traveling, reading biographies, shopping, discussing current events, tangos and the music of Gilbert and Sullivan to name a few. She loved "going and doing". She took senior citizens on trips to Europe, taught Spanish through the adult education program in Ann Arbor and sold Avon, all during the same period of time. She volunteered in elementary school cafeterias, supervising children. In Indianapolis she was a docent at the Children's Museum and an interpreter at the 1987 Pan Am Games. But most important, were her family and friends. When she made a friend, it was for life and you were cherished. She was always there for her family. In the 60's she sponsored her sister and her two young children from Bolivia, opening up a new life to them in the United States. Several times a year, she sent large cartons of clothing to her many nieces and nephews in Bolivia. Time never lessened Luz's amazement - and gratitude - that her life brought her to live in the United States. Luz is survived by her loving husband of 65 years, Philip Ivan Karp, daughters Rosemarie Karp and Joyce Karp (Gary Hickerson) of Holmes Beach, brothers Lucho, Alberto and Willy Barragan, grandchildren, Jessica McBee (Shawn) and Nathan Hickerson and many devoted nieces and nephews. She is predeceased by her mother Raquel Barragan, sisters Elsa Barragan and Nellie Schemmel. KAYSER, John Frederick Kayser Sr.

(Abstracted from <https://www.legacy.com/obituaries/stamfordadvocate/obituary.aspx?n=john-f-kayser&pid=171187640>)
John Frederick "Jack" Kayser, age 88, died of natural causes on April 2, 2014 in Tampa, FL. A long-time Stamford resident, he was born on June 15, 1925, the youngest of six children, to Dr. and Mrs. Charles Douglas Kayser of Mt. Vernon, NY. He is survived by his wife of 63 years, Barbara MacLean Kayser of Tampa, a sister, Patricia Kayser Gehres of New Jersey, five children, Constance Porteus of Ridgefield, John Kayser, Jr. of Tampa, Alexandra Toman of Greenwich, Suzanne O'Brien of Stamford and William Kayser of Darby, MT, ten grandchildren, four great-grandchildren and numerous nieces and nephews. He was predeceased by an infant daughter, Elizabeth MacLean Kayser. Jack served in the US Army during World War II. He received his basic training at Fort Riley, KS in 1943, which was then home to the Army's 1st Cavalry Division. He was proud that he completed much of his basic training on horseback. Following completion of training as a radio operator, including learning the Morse code, Jack joined the division in New Guinea and later became a Communications Chief. He participated in the invasion of Leyte in the northern Philippines in January 1945 where the division famously fought its way to Manila in its "Flying Column" formation. During this operation, the 1st Cavalry liberated over 3,000 Philippine civilian prisoners and over 60 captured US Army nurses. Jack participated in follow-on operations in the southern Philippines to mop up remaining pockets of Japanese resistance. With resistance officially declared at an end on July 1, 1945, the 1st Cavalry Division deployed from the Philippines to Japan in late August 1945, arriving in Yokohama on September 2, 1945, the same day that Japan formally surrendered onboard the USS Missouri in Tokyo Bay. The 1st Cavalry Division entered Tokyo six days later on September 8, 1945, making it the first US division to enter Japan's capital city. After four months of occupation duty, Jack redeployed to the United States and was honorably discharged with the rank of Technician Fourth Grade, equivalent to Sergeant. He qualified on the M1 rifle and earned the Combat Infantryman's Badge. His awards upon discharge included the Bronze Star Medal, Good Conduct Medal, World War II Victory Medal with 2 Bronze Service Stars, the Army of Occupation Medal with Japan Clasp and the Philippine Presidential Unit Citation Badge. In the early 1970s, he received a second Bronze Star Medal from the Army in the mail. In a letter accompanying the award, the Army explained the award recommendation was misplaced, but discovered 25 years later and approved. Before joining the Army, Jack was graduated from Mount Saint Michael's preparatory school in the Bronx where he played multiple sports. After the war, he attended Wesley College in Dover, DE where he excelled at basketball and met his future wife. Jack worked for many years as a sales executive for Scovill Manufacturing Company of Waterbury, CT and its successor company, Century Brass. He was a devout Catholic and one of the original members of St. Leo's Roman Catholic Church in Stamford, which he attended for over 40 years. He served twice as president of the church's Holy Name Society. Jack was a life-long patriot and for many years enjoyed exchanging letters on political matters with elected officials and others, including the late Wm. F. Buckley, Jr., also of Stamford. He also wrote many letters to the editor of the Stamford Advocate. Jack was a member of the Sons of the American Revolution, reflecting a long family history of military service in our nation's conflicts. Jack was interred on April 8, 2014 in Section 5, Site 224 at the Sarasota National Cemetery in Sarasota, Florida. A US Army honor guard rendered military funeral honors.

Navy SEAL Charlie Keating, an acclaimed Arcadia High School distance runner and grandson of the famous savings-and-loan financier with the same name, died in northern Iraq on Tuesday after Islamic State militants penetrated Kurdish defensive lines and launched an attack with small arms and car bombs. Bradley Boland, Keating's uncle, confirmed to The Arizona Republic that his nephew had been killed. Charlie Keating, known as "C-4" because he had the same name as three generations before him, also is the cousin of Olympic swimming champion Gary Hall Jr. Hall Jr. said he was not comfortable talking about his cousin's death. "It's horrible, and it breaks my heart," said Conley Wolfswinkel, a Valley developer and close friend of the Keating family. "My heart goes out to the family. No one deserves this." Gov. Doug Ducey ordered the lowering of flags to honor the Navy SEAL. "Our state and nation are in mourning today over the loss of a U.S. serviceman — and one of America's finest," Ducey said in a statement. "Mr. Keating is the third American service member to be killed in direct combat in our nation's fight against ISIS. His death is a tragic reminder of the daily sacrifices made by our men and women in uniform — fighting evil and extremism on the front lines to protect freedom and democracy at home and throughout the world." The governor directed all state flags to be lowered to half-staff from sunrise to sunset Wednesday, and flags will be lowered on the day of his interment. The 31-year-old Keating, a 2004 graduate of Arcadia High School, was city and region champion in the 1,600-meter run as a sophomore, junior and senior. He earned all-city and first-team all-state honors as a high-school senior, according to Indiana University, where he went to college, following in his father's footsteps. His father, Charles H Keating III, was a three-time All-American and competed in breaststroke at the 1976 Olympics in Montreal, according to a university statement. Charlie Keating was a student at Indiana from 2004-06 and ran on the track and cross-country teams. He left college to enlist in the Navy and try to become a SEAL, according to Robert Chapman, who coached cross country at the time.

King, BATTERY A, 1ST BN, 320TH FIELD ARTILLERY REGT, 2 BCT, FORT CAMPBELL, KY, killed July 14, 2020 in AFGHANISTAN For so many who gathered at Christian Heritage Church Saturday morning, Private First Class Brandon King is war hero; a man who gave the ultimate sacrifice for his country. A man deserving of a hero's farewell. But to his grieving mother Freda, he's the son she'll never see again. And she's the heart broken mother who only has her faith to hold on to. Brandon was born on September 22, 1986 in Key West, FL and attended public schools in Bellevue and Kent, WA. He was a true gamer and always enjoyed a spirited game of spades. Brandon joined the Army in September 2009 and arrived at Fort Campbell in April 2010. Close friends and family, and even some who didn't know King filled the sanctuary to pay their respects. "At first I was angry. He is a hero and he's going to be a hero forever whether he's in glory with God or here on earth with us," said family friend Lolita Dash-Pitts. Behind the uniform, those who knew him say, King was man who loved to smile, joke, and especially loved his family. And today was testament to how much he was loved back. "Thank you. You're there defending us. You're there, whether you agree with it or not, you're there making it to where we can live the life we live every day. So all I can say and think is thank you," said friend Kelly Wolmack. Private First Class King was awarded a purple heart for his service, which was presented to his mother during today's service. KIRK, Jeffrey Lynn Kirk

Marine Sgt. Jeffrey Lynn Kirk, 24, of Baton Rouge, LA; was assigned to 3rd Battalion, 5th Marine Regiment, 1st Marine Division, I Marine Expeditionary Force, Camp Pendleton, CA; killed Dec. 12 by enemy action in Anbar province, Iraq. Kirk had already been wounded in the line of duty once and had asked to be sent back, family members said. When Jeffrey Lynn Kirk was considering joining the Marine Corps as a student McKinley High School in Baton Rouge, his mother warned him of the possibility of dying in combat. His reply was "At least I would die doing what I wanted to do with my life," Lisa Kirk of Abita Springs said. Kirk, 24, was killed Sunday by enemy fire in Anbar province, Iraq. Lisa Kirk said although her son, whose interests included art and poetry, was an honor graduate and participated in the gifted program at McKinley, he had planned to enter the military even before graduation. "He wanted to be in the military. He wanted to be a Marine," she said. Kirk rose through the ranks to become a platoon sergeant in the Marines' Special Forces anti-terrorism security team, known as Fast Company, said Kirk's father, Peter. During his six-year military career, Kirk was awarded the Marine Corps Good Conduct Medal, Global War on Terrorism Expeditionary Medal, Sea Service Deployment Ribbon and the National Defense Service Medal, according to the Marine Corps. When it came time to re-enlist, Kirk was set to become a pistol instructor at the Marine Corps Officer Candidate School in Quantico, VA. After the Sept. 11, 2001 terrorist attacks, however, he requested a transfer to an infantry unit to serve in Iraq, his father said. "He felt like if he didn't do this he would look back on his life as this was something he should have done," Peter Kirk said. Kirk was shot in the thigh in a November firefight; he was to receive a medal for valor in combat, his father said. After he recovered, Kirk requested to be put back in action. Although his enlistment was to expire this month, he chose to extend it to stay with his men, Lisa Kirk said. "He was truly dedicated to what he was doing," she said. After returning from his first deployment in Iraq, Kirk married "the love of his life" Carly Furr, of Baker, in September 2003, Lisa Kirk said. She said Kirk's wife, who resides in California, heads a volunteer group which supports the families of Marines deployed overseas, has attended funerals of Marines killed in action and written letters of condolence to their families. Upon release of Kirk's body, his family, including his 10-year-old brother Benjamin, will hold services for him. Burial will be at Port Hudson National Cemetery in Zachary, his mother said. Family and friends gathered at Florida Boulevard Baptist Church to remember Kirk's life — his coffin positioned in the center of the church near the altar, draped with an American flag and bathed in bright light. Kirk's family, including his widow, Carly, sat in the front center pews of the sanctuary with rows of Marines sectioned on either side.

James Allen Kirkpatrick of Safety Harbor, Florida, known as everybody's "BUDDY" went "Home" to be with his Heavenly Father on Tuesday, February 17, 2015 at the age of 82 and became God's Buddy. He was born December 29, 1932, in Los Angeles, CA, son of the late Millard Bowling Kirkpatrick and Jewell Havill. Buddy was hard-working and believed in taking the road less traveled. He served with the United States Air Force at the age of 17, journeying all over the world serving tours of duty in many countries, the most notable being Saudi Arabia, the Korean War and Vietnam. He was honorably recognized with the Meritorious Service Medal-Korean War Veteran; the Vietnam Campaign Medal awarded by South Vietnam for participation in major Vietnamese military operations; the Bronze Medal and Oak Leaf Cluster Commendation Medals for Meritorious Service, and others. He took pride in his service to his country and worked hard for his family. But he wasn't done. Upon retirement in 1977 from the Air Force, he worked for Shaffer's Commercial Seating in Denver, CO, until he retired from there and moved to Florida. He enjoyed deep-sea fishing or just sitting peacefully on the dock. His greatest enjoyment became his grandchildren and great-grandchildren. They could make him smile and clap his hands. As he lay preparing himself for his journey to Heaven, his great-granddaughter, Addison, two years old, sat at his bedside and sang Bible songs with the voice of an angel. Buddy gathered all his strength he had and smiled and clapped once again. Buddy watched over, deeply loved and cherished his family. He was a hero to all of us. He leaves behind his wife, Priscilla Montano Kirkpatrick; son, Michael Kirkpatrick (Cathy); daughters: Audrey Landry; Kathy George; Batasha Kirkpatrick; grandsons: James Landry (Carissa); Jason Landry; Wayne Kirkpatrick; (Lauren); Nikko Gallardo; granddaughters: Samantha Crystal Kirkpatrick (predeceased); Eliza Mirabile (Joe). great-grandchildren: Anastasia Kirkpatrick; Jazlyn Vega; Addison and Cole Landry; Chloe Kirkpatrick; Haley Banner and Kimberly Hobb. He will be deeply missed and our hearts are sad, but bittersweet with happiness that Buddy suffers no longer after a long illness and is comforted by God's Grace. "Welcome Home," Buddy. Irish Eyes are smiling once again! A funeral service will be held in Section 3, Site 850 at Sarasota National Cemetery, Sarasota, Florida, with full military honors.

KNIGHT, Calvin Ellis Knight

(Abstracted from <https://veteransfuneralcare.com/obituary/Calvin-Ellis-Knight>)

Calvin Ellis Knight, age 71, of Largo, FL, passed away on Friday, May 30, 2014, at the Morton Plant Hospital in Clearwater. He was a Florida native being born Apr. 15, 1943 in Wauchula, FL, and living here most of his life. Calvin joined the Air Force in 1962, where it forever changed his life. He went into the Air Force as Private, and exited an Airman 1st Class. He met his wife, Carolyn while stationed at Tinker Air Force Base in Oklahoma City, OK. Upon his discharge, they drove to Florida where they lived with his mom in Sarasota for a few short months. Calvin Knight and his wife, Carolyn moved to Pinellas County in 1966, where-after, he shortly began his career at GTE. He was sent to Pole Climbing School and worked as a pole climber when that abruptly was changed after he was sent home for sliding down the pole, tearing his clothes which was completely against the rules. He thought he had been fired, but was ordered to come back and then was placed inside as an equipment installer. Calvin loved his job at GTE and that was evident in the number of promotions and awards he received, from Supervisor all the way to Quality Control Administrator when he retired in 1991. Calvin and his wife, adopted a baby girl, Rhonda in 1972, and when you would hear him tell the story, he would always get emotional. He was such a proud father and always said she was a gift from God and that is why he called her his precious angel. Calvin was not only a husband, but a father, grandfather and friend. He loved his grandchildren more than anything and would stop the world for them if he could. When his granddaughter, Alexandria was born, his first words were, look at her little rose bud lips. He was proud and you could see it every time he held her. They were close and when Alexandria wanted something, she could bend his heart every time. He loved his family, but he also had a love for fishing. He would spend many weekends on rivers, enjoying the sport with his friends. He taught his daughter to fish, and he would always say, "Rhonda, you need to learn how to bait your own hook. I am spending more time baiting your hook, than I am fishing." His favorite sport was Football, especially the Florida Gators and the Tampa Bay Bucs. No one wanted to be around Calvin when either team was losing. His passion ran so deep, he just couldn't stand it. His hat and anything else he could find would go flying across the room and profanities would follow. After Calvin retired from GTE, he began to take on the chore of cooking. But to Calvin, it wasn't a chore, he found he really enjoyed it. He would gather recipes from friends, cookbooks, and the newspaper and would always try something new and different, and he was really good at it. But the one thing he was most famous for was his barbecue. Everyone who ate Calvin's barbecue chicken and ribs, would always say how phenomenal they tasted. He just had a knack for cooking on the grill. One thing Calvin could do well, is tell a story. He had a way about him, when he told a story, he could keep you captivated. He was always light hearted, funny and could always make you laugh. Calvin loved his beer. His two favorites were Natural Light and Bush. You never saw Calvin without a beer in his hand. Whenever he traveled, long or short distances, he would always bring his own beer in a little cooler. Calvin was interred in Section 5, Site 294 at Sarasota National Cemetery.

KNOTTS, Don Knotts

(Abstracted from several sources)

Don Knotts, the skinny, lovable nerd who kept generations of television audiences laughing as bumbling Deputy Barney Fife on "The Andy Griffith Show," has died. He was 81. Knotts died Friday night of pulmonary and respiratory complications at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center in Beverly Hills. Unspecified health problems had forced him to cancel an appearance in his native Morgantown in August 2005. The West Virginia-born actor's half-century career included seven TV series and more than 25 films, but it was the Griffith show that brought him TV immortality and five Emmies. The show ran from 1960-68, and was in the top 10 of the Nielsen ratings each season, including a No. 1 ranking its final year. It is one of only three series in TV history to bow out at the top: The others are "I Love Lucy" and "Seinfeld." The 249 episodes have appeared frequently in reruns and have spawned a large, active network of fan clubs. As the bug-eyed deputy to Griffith, Knotts carried in his shirt pocket the one bullet he was allowed after shooting himself in the foot. The constant fumbling, a recurring sight gag, was typical of his self-deprecating humor. Knotts, whose shy, soft-spoken manner was unlike his high-strung characters, once said he was most proud of the Fife character and doesn't mind being remembered that way. His favorite episodes, he said, were "The Pickle Story," where Aunt Bea makes pickles no one can eat, and "Barney and the Choir," where no one can stop him from singing. "I can't sing. It makes me sad that I can't sing or dance well enough to be in a musical, but I'm just not talented in that way," he lamented. "It's one of my weaknesses." Knotts began his show biz career even before he graduated from high school, performing as a ventriloquist at local clubs and churches. He majored in speech at West Virginia University, then took off for the big city. "I went to New York cold. On a $100 bill. Bummed a ride," he recalled in a visit to his hometown of Morgantown, where city officials renamed a street for him in 1998. Within six months, Knotts Lara Lee Szuchna had taken a job on a radio Western called "Bobby Benson and the B-Bar-B Riders," playing a wisecracking, know-it-all handyman. He stayed with it for five years, and then came his series TV debut on "The Steve Allen Show." He married Kay Metz in 1948, the year he graduated from college. The couple had two children before divorcing in 1969. Knotts later married, then divorced Lara Lee Szuchna. In recent years, he said he had no plans to retire. The world laughed at Knotts, but it also laughed with him. He is interred in Westwood Memorial Park in Los Angeles, California. Knotts is survived by his wife of three years, Francey Yarborough, and two children, Karen and Thomas, from his first marriage.

KUSS, Jeff Kuss

(Abstracted from <http://www.durangoherald.com/article/20160610/NEWS01/160619984/Capt-Jeff-Kuss%E2%80%99-remains-arrive-in-Durango>)

Jeff Kuss, age 32, died in a plane crash June 2 while he was training with his unit, the elite Blue Angels, for an airshow in Tennessee. He was a Durango native, graduating from Durango High School in 2002 and Fort Lewis College in 2006. "Here's a guy who is a legitimate hero to the whole state," Gov. John Hickenlooper said Friday afternoon. "He went to Fort Lewis. They told him, 'Well, we're not sure that's the right school if you want to be a pilot.' He said, 'I don't care. I want to go to Fort Lewis. I want to be a pilot. I want to do both.' The guy clearly had focus." Hickenlooper ordered flags at all public buildings statewide to be flown at half-staff from sunrise to sunset Saturday to honor Kuss on the day of his service. Kuss' commanding officer, Cmdr. Ryan Bernacchi, lauded his fellow pilot at a short news conference late Friday afternoon. "Jeff Kuss was, without a doubt, one of the finest Americans this country can produce," he said. "Jeff was a product of Durango, he is Durango's son." Earlier Friday, a chartered 737 brought in Marines and the members of the Blue Angels, including the honor guard that greeted Kuss' arrival in the Blue Angels' C-130 Hercules transport plane. Normally known as "Fat Albert," the C-130 was rechristened No. 6, Kuss' flight designation, for this week. His mother, Janet Kuss, stood in a hatch at the top of No. 6 with a U.S. flag as the plane taxied to the apron. As the plane came to a stop, the pilots simultaneously stopped the four propellers in the same cross-shape. The color guard stood at attention until the family left. Christina Ferrarese Kuss, the captain's wife and who is also from Durango, took time to thank members of the color guard and the plane's pilots for bringing her husband and her family home. Jeff Perino, who is married to Christina Kuss' sister Nicole, was one of several people wearing a blue wristband remembering Capt. Jeff "Kooch" Kuss and No. 6. The arrival was purposefully kept small and low key. But that didn't stop people from honoring their passage as they left the airport. "As a veteran, I want to honor him if I can," said Bobby Phillips, who served in the Navy during the Vietnam War. He drove from Farmington to the main terminal at the airport and plans to return Saturday for the motorcade route. "As long as they have served their country, they deserve respect." Poles around the airport were decorated with blue and yellow ribbons - the colors of both the Blue Angels and Fort Lewis College - and American flags.

Periodically along the way, an individual or group stood silently by the road, including a group of veterans from Bayfield "with one Durangoan sprinkled in," he said. One more event has been added to the calendar of the weekend's remembrances of Jeff Kuss - one that residents can participate in from home. Grammy-winning sound engineer Tom MacCluskey, 84, who was a Navy pilot and announced for the Blue Angels during the 1950s, will dedicate part of his Sunday morning Mostly Classical radio show. Only friends and family are invited to the Greenmount Cemetery service as well as military members who will ride in the motorcade. "If Durango friends or family happened to be left off or an error was made on the list," Kuss' mother, Janet Kuss, said, "please don't take offense and know it's tough to plan this." Residents can line the entire route, and small U.S. flags were distributed for people to wave, or they can wave blue and yellow ribbons or tie them along the route. Signs honoring Kuss and his service and his family also can be displayed. The Blue Angel press office issued this response to a request for motorcade etiquette: "You should remove your hat (if you are wearing one) and stand at attention in respectful silence until the escort passes. Uniformed U.S. service members wearing their cover (hat) would salute." The service will be private, and Greenmount Cemetery will be closed during the service. Residents may hear the rifle volley and see jets fly over town and the cemetery in the Missing Man Formation. Capt. Clay Groover of Beaufort Marine Air Station in South Carolina said the Checkerboards were sending two F/A-18 Hornets. The flyover will be led by a pilot Kuss served in combat with from the USS Harry S. Truman in Afghanistan and will include F-18s with aviators from Carrier Group 8 and Marine Fighter Attack Squadron 312, Kuss' unit prior to joining the Blue Angels in 2014. "Pilots fly this magnificent and solemn aerial maneuver for presidents, potentates, astronauts and other pilots of note as a tribute and showing of love, respect and camaraderie for a brother pilot," the Blue Angels said in a post from the website Old Glory Traditions. "This maneuver is sometimes flown with the wingman spiraling off, or it is flown consistently with a hole where another should be." Both the salute and flyover should occur around 1 p.m. The Rim at FLC is a good viewing point for the Missing Man Formation.

KYLE, Chris Kyle

(Abstracted from many newspaper sources)

He said he killed 160 people, perhaps many more, making him one of the leading US military snipers of all time. In the course of four combat deployments to Iraq, he said insurgents nicknamed him "the devil of Ramadi" and placed a $20,000 bounty on his head. "After the first kill, the others come easy," Kyle wrote last year in his best-selling memoir of Iraqi war service with the elite Navy SEALs. "I don't have to psych myself up, or do something special mentally - I look through the scope, get my target in the cross hairs, and kill my enemy, before he kills one of my people." Despite a career mostly lived by the gun, Kyle's death was nonetheless shocking. He was killed in a double slaying at the Rough Creek Lodge and Resort shooting range about 50 miles southwest of Fort Worth. Kyle, former Texas ranch hand and bronco buster who called himself the antithesis of the "refined assassin," joined the SEALs in 1999 and served four combat deployments before retiring in 2009. The SEALs specialize in surgical strike forces, and Kyle's steady nerve, his patience for stalking and his pinpoint marksmanship through his rifle scope earned him two awards of the Silver Star and five awards of the Bronze Star. His book, American Sniper: the Autobiography of the Most Lethal Sniper in U.S. Military History, sold hundreds of thousands of copies. Co-written with Scott McEwen and Jim DeFelice, American Sniper rode a crest of interest in behind-the-mystique, preserve-the-mystique SEAL volumes such as No Easy Day, Matt Bissonnette's pseudonymous account of the raid that killed Osama bin Laden. Kyle was at the Rough Creek Lodge for a charity event to support his Dallas-based security firm, Craft International. Kyle also helped to start a non-profit group, the FITCO Cares Foundation, to supply at-home fitness equipment to emotionally and physically wounded veterans. With his Texas drawl, hulking physique and tightly reserved public manner, Kyle drew a degree of celebrity in the past year as he appeared on late-night talk shows and in the NBC competition show Stars Earn Stripes, which pairs military and law enforcement veterans with actors in drill exercises. In an interview, Kyle agreed that it was "kind of frowned on" in commando circles to become a public figure. "But I'm not trying to glorify myself," he said. "I didn't want to put the number of kills I had in there. I wanted to get it out about the sacrifices military families have to make." Christopher Scott Kyle was born on April 8, 1974 and grew up on a ranch in Odessa, Texas. As a young man, he hunted deer and pheasant with a bolt-action 30-06 rifle and rode bulls and broncs in rodeos. "When I grew up, I only had two dreams," he said last year. "One was to be a cowboy and another was to be in the military. I grew up extremely patriotic and riding horses." After studying ranch and range management at Tarleton State University, he returned to ranching before enlisting in the Navy with the ambition of joining the SEALs. He recalled his first kill in Iraq, of a woman walking with a child. Through his scope, he watched her remove a grenade from under her clothes, just as a group of Marines was approaching. It was a disquieting experience that made him hesitate at first from firing. "She had turned herself into a suicide bomber," Kyle later said. "Her intention was to kill herself and blow up the Marines.... Either way she was going to die." His sniper shots ranged mostly from 200 to 1,200 yards. Remarkably, while on assignment near Sadr City in Baghdad in 2008, he managed to kill an insurgent from about 2,100 yards away. The fighter was about to launch a rocket-propelled grenade at an Army convoy and, besides distance, Kyle had to consider factors such as wind and vibration from the shot. "God blew that bullet and hit him," Kyle said. Amid the bravado, American Sniper explored the impact of military life on Kyle's marriage. On an assignment in Baghdad, he wrote in the book, he called his wife on a satellite phone only to be interrupted by burst of gunfire and then a rocket-propelled grenade. The phone stayed on for much of the battle, then went dead. It was days before Kyle could call his wife and reassure her he had come through. He wrote that he left the military to save his marriage. The Pentagon does not typically confirm sniper kills publicly, but Kyle wrote that the Navy credited him with 160 kills as a sniper. That would make him a vastly more accomplished sniper than the previous known US record-holder, Adelbert F Waldron III, who was credited with 109 kills in Vietnam. Finnish sniper Simo Hayha killed more than 500 Soviets during World War II, by most estimates a world record in known combat operations. American Sniper provided rare insight into a sniper's telescope-lens view of the world, where there exists by the nature of the work only friend and foe. "For the most part, the public is very soft. You live in a dreamworld," Kyle said last year. "You have no idea what goes on on the other side of the world, the harsh realities that these people are doing to themselves and then our guys. And there are certain things that need to be done to take care of them." Chris Kyle is survived by his wife, Taya, and their two children.
